

BRIDGING SILOS

Collaborating for Environmental Health and Justice
in Urban Communities

Katrina Smith Korfmacher

ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH SCIENCES ZOOMINAR SERIES “Collaborating for Environmental Health and Justice”

Dr. Katrina S. Korfmacher, Wednesday, May 6, 12:00 to 1:00 PM

Dr. Korfmacher will discuss how the management of the environment and public health was once integrated but has become separated into self-contained “silos.” She will discuss novel approaches to bridge these silos through collaborative local environmental health initiatives. Community groups, government agencies, academic institutions, and private institutions each have a role to play. Collaborating effectively requires stakeholders to appreciate their partners' diverse incentives, capacities, and constraints. This zoominar will be of interest to those who live and work in both rural and urban communities.

Who Should Attend?

Community Members
Government Personnel
Health Department Staff
Business Leaders
Educators
Researchers

REGISTER

by May 4, 2020

https://bit.ly/EHS_050620

Sponsored by

Center for Appalachian Research in Environmental Sciences

